

This journal is a bit of a mixed bag. Frogs in a flower, a moon montage, lots of birds and some beach scenes. Life may be slow here at Wonga Beach but not dull.

A beach Curlew and some fig Parrots.

My neighbours Heather and Rob build his each year from stuff washed up on the beach. Then some mangroves next to a small fresh water creek.

Allan throwing a cast net in the Daintree River. And me up the bank on crocodile watch. Check out the camouflage of the Papuan Frogmouth Owl that lives in the park.

A photo from last months full moon using unorthodox camera settings.

I will be leaving Wonga Beach in about 5 weeks to head down to the Sunshine Coast and a night out in Brisbane. There are still some projects to do with the camera so there should be one more journal from here. The weather is starting to warm up a bit and that suits me just fine.

I have a pair of Curlews are sitting on eggs about 5 metres from the back of my truck so that could be interesting when they hatch. The Sunbirds have a number of nests around the park and the Fig Parrots that were excavating the hole in the tree may well have eggs by now. I still don't have a decent photo of the Spangled Drongo and they haven't been seen for a week or more.

Now that the weather is warmer I will be trying for more night shots on the beach. Some star photography is on the cards soon.

That is all for now. And I am starting to get the hang of this Apple Pages software.
